I transfer to the Technische Universität Berlin – represented by the Universitätsbibliothek, Hauptabteilung 3 Elektronische Dienste – the non-exclusive, irrevocable right to store electronically the submitted research data and its metadata and to make it publicly available on the Internet. This includes all known and as yet unknown types of use.
2. I give permission to TU Berlin to pass the research data on to other repositories, archives, and if necessary, aggregators for the purpose of digital archiving and/or making it publicly available. This includes, for example, the digital archive of the German National Library, as well as other appropriate subject or regional repositories.
3. I give permission for the publication of the metadata, including the abstract, under the Creative Commons Zero license (CC0, see <https://creativecommons.org/publicdomain/zero/1.0/>).
4. I agree with the creation of copies and the conversion of the research data to other electronic or physical formats for the purpose of archiving while preserving the integrity of the content.

Declaration of copyright and personal rights

1. I assure that I own the copyright of all parts of the research data and that the publication of the research data will not infringe on third-party personal rights or third-party copyright. If alleged or actual infringement of the rights of third parties is asserted, I will notify the repository operator immediately. I exempt the Technische Universität Berlin from any claims of third parties.
2. I assure that the electronic version is identical in form and content to potentially existing print versions.
3. If the document or its metadata contain any personal information (e. g. CV), I agree with their publication. I assure that no personal rights will be violated with the publication.
